Description

A brass Kit Bag Lock with associated padlock.

The vast majority of Kit Bag Locks are unmarked so it is always pleasing to find one with a name to it. This example has the retailer's name of 'Whiteaway Laidlaw & Co. Ltd.' A Kit Bag Lock was useful to the traveller as an extra lock to unite a pair of handles and to secure your luggage to an overhead rack or railings etc. Padlocks to use with them were typically sold separately. Circa 1900.

Size without padlock is given.
