Description

A well made late Victorian Crocodile Cigar Case.

The two sleeves are each made out of one piece of crocodile skin which is finely stitched to two sides with a slightly raised seam. The interior has a thin leather lining.

The initials 'W. J.' are stamped in gilt to the interior sleeve. The case will take cigars of a diameter of 5/8 inch or 1.7 cm. It could also take a mobile phone. Late 19th Century.
