Description

A small pair of cut-glass Ship or Rodney Decanters, so named after Admiral Rodney.

The Decanters have two rings to the neck to give a good grip whilst pouring. The conical body is stepped with the serrated base lines meeting at the centre like rays. The mushroom stoppers are radially cut as stars. The conical shape of the Decanters, giving a low centre of gravity, was well suited to use on board ship.

Not only is it good to have a pair but the small size of these Decanters is particularly pleasing. Early 20th Century.
