Short Description

This set of leather cased travel cutlery is stamped in gilt to the case with the details of 'Lund Maker, 57 Cornhill, London'.

The three parts of the cutlery slot together to form one handle to pack into the case. Lund were good quality makers and were also known for their corkscrews and razors. The scales are engraved with the initials E.R. The three parts to the cutlery are a little loose to each other but it is a bonus that it has kept its original leather case. The antique period is late 19th century.
